

Preliminary Study: Can we learn from text on the web?

Here we report an illustration that shows how we mapped task to questions scraped from the web for our second preliminary study that aimed to test for if we could use textual data on the web to learn the behavior of data analysts. The questions are as follows:

Note: The questions collected for the study as well as the articles used for this study and other studies are provided in the Text zip file.